Command & Conquer: Generals is a real-time strategy video game developed by EA Pacific and released in 2003. The game takes place in an entirely separate continuity that is completely unrelated to the Red Alert universe or the Tiberium universe. It is the first Command & Conquer RTS game to use 3D graphics in-game.

Generals was the second game to be released from the team at Westwood Pacific (at this point called EA Pacific) and introduced 3 brand new factions in an exaggerated modern warfare setting. It was a departure from the usual C&C format which polarised fans at first but, over time it has earned it's place amongst the other entries in the series.

Command Center. This building is the main building for the Americans. It is the first building that is already built when constructing a base. You can use this structure to build bulldozers, which in turn build the other base structures. The Command Center is where many specials, such as the spy satellite, are selected to be used.
