Ducati Monster Check Engine Light

2014 Ducati Multistrada 1200 S 2012 Ducati Monster 1100 EVO (sold) ... No check engine light, until... stopped at the gas station and filled up. I accidentally overfilled a little bit (up into the filler neck) After about 8-10 miles of riding the CEL started coming on intermittently for the next 10 miles home. I googled, then found this thread. Interesting. Not saying overfill is my issue, but ...

When the bike has been stopped for 10 minutes or more and you fire it up the engine management light stays on, if you knock it off then restart it again straight away the light goes out and stays out. When the light is on it runs lumpy and won't rev past 6k but it runs sweet as a nut when the lights out.

At 821 disconnecting cable did not induce engine light, at 939 it does, so with 939 you need the eliminatorthing. Except you let the motor connected but dismount wire from motor to flap. If above is not the reason because you did not disconnect the cable from flappermotor, i have no idea what could force engine light.
