We have used adhesive velcro to hold on the filler panel underneath the oven but put a small screw through it to secure it in place. The curtains that let in the least amount of light are pencil pleat on a traditional track. Anything on a pole will let light in because there is a gap between the pole and the wall. A pelmet would help.

The easiest way to bring more outside light into your house is to clean and open up your windows so they're letting in as much light as possible. However, even if you don't have a ton of bright windows in your home, there are still things you can do to make it sunnier, like painting your walls a lighter color and using reflective decor.
