“Spandau Phoenix: A Novel” by Greg Iles is a World War II based story, but which takes place primarily in 1989 in still-divided Berlin, in England, and in South Africa. There is a denouement, but the only problem is that it’s 200 pages long. The long-suffering reader of this 700-page book just wants it to end.

So what does it matter that an old man, the last of the Nazi war criminals, is found dead in Spandau prison? Well, it turns out that no fewer than eight governmental organizations (American, British, East and West German, South African, Israeli, Libyan and Russian) have a vested interest the death of the prisoner formerly known as Rudolf Hess - and it all revolves around a nine-page document that is found by an honest West German police officer. Most of the intricate plot is set up in the ...

Why did the world's entire history of World War II have to be rewritten as the future hung over a nightmare abyss? Rudolph Hess--Spandau prisoner number 7--dies in 1987. When a secret "Hess diary" is found at Spandau by a West German policeman, the various police and intelligence agencies stationed in Berlin become even more interested in Hess's 1941 flight to England.

Spandau Prison was located in the borough of Spandau in western Berlin. It was constructed in 1876 and demolished in August 1987 to prevent it from becoming a neo-Nazi shrine after the death of its last prisoner, Rudolf Hess, who had died from a suspected suicide aged 93. The site was later rebuilt as a shopping centre for the British forces stationed in Germany.
